

CHOICES

By Paralee Eadie

Choices consist of right or wrong,
Choosing to do or not to do.
Choosing to put others first
Or making life all about you.

Choosing to stand for what is right,
Even though the cost is great.
Standing in the gap for the weak
Against tyranny and hate.

To have the power to be first,
Yet respond in humility
By choosing not to push your view
But showcase another's ability.

Sometimes you'll make a wrong choice.
Then you must choose to turn or stay;
Choose to wallow in defeat
Or turn and go the other way.

You even choose by not choosing,
By doing nothing at all.
By going neither left nor right
You're causing your own downfall.

So the choice is up to you.
Your life will be what you choose.
There will be struggles, but your choice
Will determine if you win or lose!
